I'm sure many of you have wondered how you can help the victims of the awful fire that happened at Grenfell Tower a few weeks ago.

Some of our London ACMAC members - Sheira Chan and Gisela Norman have set up front line “Emergency Acupuncture” at various London locations. Since then, over 50 volunteer acupuncturists have joined the cause to treat the community for post traumatic stress. Some of the team has worked in Gaza and Myanmar so they have some amazing front line experience. In addition, a number of acupuncture supply companies have agreed to match donations for equipment to aid the emergency acupuncture clinics.

Emergency Acupuncture can be found at the following locations:

Ad hoc ‘Street Clinics’ under the flyover near Westway Sports Centre, treating the public on the street

The Mosque: Fridays – 4 -7pm and Saturdays 1 – 5pm. The Muslim Cultural Centre 244 Acklam Road, W10 5YG

The Dalgarno Centre, Dalgarno Way, London W10 5LE. Treatment space on Fridays 10am – 1pm

Please contact Gisela and Sheira if you would like to help deliver treatments or to donate needles and supplies. They are especially keen to hear from male practitioners as there are a number of muslim men who need treatment who would prefer a male practitioner.

Please include your professional membership detail contact number and times you are available. You can then be added to the whatsapp group. There are a few locations in and around the area where we are operating and we are only offering NADA treatments. If people need more they are being directed to Portabello community clinic on a Wednesday.

Our friends and colleagues in the US are running a survey to discover what community acupuncturists do and to try and document the range of clinical strategies that different practitioners use. They've worked with a psychometrics company to create the survey and have already gathered more than 400 responses. They're planning to publish and share the data, so the more people who participate, the more valuable the shared data will be. They've asked for our help to get some input from here in the UK (and beyond) as they can break the results out by country/region when we publish them. They're looking for data from people who practice community acupuncture full-time, part-time, in combination with private room acupuncture, and also — people who practice private room acupuncture, for contrast. To take part in the survey visit HERE. It will run until the end of August.

Si Yuan Balance Method is returning to London this October and are offering ACMAC members a 5% discount on the full four-day course.

Dates: Thursday 26th - Sunday 30th October 2017

To find out more and book your place visit HERE.

Hove Community Acupuncture is currently looking to for practitioners to locum at the clinic to cover staff holidays. If you're interested in working in a long-established clinic please EMAIL the team.
